The bank teller said in a snippy way: "I don't know you madam!"
The woman was red-headed and she got red-headed immediately. She said: "Oh, yes, you do. I don't need anybody to identify me. I'm the red-headed hen next door to you whose boys are always running through your garden and when you started to own this morning your wife said, 'Now, Henry, if you want a dinner fit to eat this evening you'll have to leave me a little money. I can't keep this house in faith.'"

"Here's your money," interrupted the teller very faintly.
HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Paper Napkins.
Keep paper napkins in the bathroom cabinet and use them to wipe off the nickel plumbing and the white porcelain.
Waterproofing Floors.
You can waterproof your kitchen floor by applying cold paraffin oil with a soft cloth. Then you will have less difficulty with stains and spots.
To Make Soup.
All gravies make a good starting point for a soup. Dilute it to proper consistency, add whatever vegetables you have, simmer for a few minutes and then add croutons or noodles and serve.
Hot Pack.
What a hot water pack is not available, place a fairly thick magazine in the oven and heat it thoroughly, then wrap in a soft flannel and use as a hot water bag. It will retain heat for a long time.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Grapefruit, scrambled eggs with rice, toasted bran muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked cheese, cabbage salad, read and utter, filled cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Tomato bouillon, creamed chicken on toast, twice baked potatoes, creamed onions, orange salad, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

There are always bits of chicken left after a chicken dinner. The neck, backbone and wings yield delicious tidbits, but are seldom popular on the table. Pick the meat carefully from the bones, removing skin and gristle and simply reheat it in the cream sauce. Too much cooking makes chicken stringy and tasteless.

Baked Cheese.
Two cups stale bread crumbs from the soft part of the loaf, 1 egg, 2 cups milk, 1 cup finely chopped cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, dash mustard.

Heat milk to the scalding point and pour over bread crumbs. Let stand half an hour. Beat egg slightly. Add egg, cheese and seasoning to bread and milk and beat well. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven until firm to the touch. It will take about half an hour.

This is a nourishing economical luncheon dish for the entire family.

Filled Cookies.
One cup granulated sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup butter and lard combined, 5 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon sour milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Filling. One cup chopped and seeded raisins, 3/4 cup sugar, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few gratings nutmeg.
To make cookies, mix sugar, flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg. Rub in shortening. Beat eggs until light and add soda dissolved in sour milk. Add this to first mixture with vanilla. If the dough is dry and crumbly work in a very little more milk. If the eggs are good sized more milk is unnecessary but very small eggs require added liquid. Put one-fourth the mixture on a floured molding board and roll very thin. Cut with a round cookie cutter. Put a teaspoonful of the filling in center of half cookies. Cover with remaining dough. Gather trimmings and add to remaining dough. Roll and cut. Bake in a hot oven.

To make filling, mix sugar and cornstarch. Put raisins and water in sauce pan and bring to the boiling point. Stir in sugar and cornstarch, add nutmeg and cook until thick. Remove from the fire and let cool slightly before adding vanilla.

Orange Salad.
Three large oranges, 1/4 cup finely chopped nuts, 1/2 cup chopped dates, tiny pinch of salt, lettuce, French dressing.

Peel oranges and separate into sections. Remove skin from each section. Allow one-half orange for each serving. Arrange sections on lettuce, sprinkle with dates and nuts and a very little salt. Pour over French dressing and serve. Chill the lettuce and oranges before mixing the salad.

Slater is a fine speaker, hear him on this subject—you will not regret it. A short business session will follow the program.—President.

League of Women Voters Will Meet

Chicago.—Following up their activity in a general "Get-out-the-Vote" campaign, the success of which is claimed to be recognized in the outcome of the November 4 election, Illinois women of the League of Women Voters come here November 19 for a three-day session at which legislation they desire will be one of the principal subjects for discussion.

Administration of officials whom they helped to elect also will be considered, according to Miss Julia Lathrop, president. Child welfare, law enforcement and kindred projects are other matters to come in for discussion. Women leaders prominent in their fields from many parts of the country will make addresses.

The convention will be preceded by a tri-state conference of directors and officers of the League from Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois, to be held at Winnetka, a suburb. Speakers at this conference include Mrs. Henry E. Thomas of Sheboygan, president of the Wisconsin League, Miss Margaret Wells, director of the Fifth region, Mrs. C. A. Carls, director of the Indiana League, Miss Edna Wright, secretary of the Wisconsin branch and Mrs. William C. Hubbard of Winnetka.

On next Tuesday, there will be a joint meeting with the Child Welfare committee of the Women's City Club of Chicago, at which addresses will be made by Dr. Annie S. Veatch of Kentucky and Dr. Ruth Boynton of Minnesota.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, honor president of the National League, Miss Katherine Ludington, treasurer of the National League, Mrs. Mabel Wilbrandt, assistant attorney general of the United States, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Miss Lathrop are among those to address the Illinois convention.

A law enforcement breakfast is on the program, over which Miss Lathrop will preside and Miss Wilbrandt will make the speech.

Another feature planned is a banquet to be held under the auspices of the Sixth Ward League of Women Voters here, Thursday evening. This league was active in the election and some of its experiences will be told. Mrs. Catt will be the main speaker.

"Women are learning that the periods between elections are of as much importance as the periods preceding elections, if the affairs of government in Illinois are to be efficiently conducted," said Miss Lathrop. "We expect to lay the groundwork for the most intensive of women's campaigns at these meetings."

COLLAR ADDS CHIC, CHARM

The tendency to wear smart collar effects with evening gowns is illustrated in this photograph. It adds chic and charm to this interestingly cut gown of green crepe with the corsage of flowers in shades of deep red and gold. It fastens on one side with a scarf hanging down the back, and is fastened with a small bouquet of flowers like those on the corsage.

FUNERAL DIXON MAN'S SISTER IS HELD IN STERLING

Mrs. Fred Hathaway is Buried in Mill-edgeville Plot.

The funeral of Mrs. Fred Hathaway of Ottawa, sister of Milton Freas of Dixon, who died Saturday morning at the Dixon hospital following injuries received in an auto accident east of the city, was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ferdinand Jacobs of Sterling today. The services were private and burial was in the family lot in the Mill-edgeville cemetery.

Mrs. Hathaway was born in Shenandoah, Pa., and came west with her parents when she was a young girl. She settled in Mill-edgeville, but afterward moved to Chicago, where she was married to Fred Hathaway of Ottawa, Feb. 3, 1906.

Her untimely death will deprive Ottawa of one of the leaders of community life in several different phases. She was an active member of the Ottawa Woman's club, was one of the board of lady managers of the Ryburn hospital of Ottawa for the past six years and was prominent in lodge work. She was the first worthy high priestess of Olivet Shrine of the order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, and was also a past worthy matron of Mary E. chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of Ottawa.

Beside her husband, she leaves the following brothers and sisters: Mark Freas, of Mill-edgeville; Milton Freas of Dixon; Mrs. Ferdinand Jacobs and Mrs. Cora Miller of Sterling; Mrs. L. G. Garrow and Mrs. Annie Brosnan of Chicago.

One of the protests addressed to President Coolidge by W. A. Hamilton, commander of the American Legion, described the action as "a most vicious bit of discrimination and un-Americanism." Secretary Slomp, replying, said the matter had been referred to Secretary Mellon at the President's direction.

Upon receipt of this letter the Walker post dispatched messages to the Walter Carter post of Boston, Charles B. Young post of New York, Lemuel Boydston post of Cleveland and the Tillman-Harpole post of St. Louis, charging that the "drawing of the color line in death" was an insult to 400,000 negro veterans and urging them to join in the protest secretary.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Vigorous protests are being made against the separation of the names of white and negro treasury employees killed in the war on tablets recently placed in the lobby of the departments register's office.

CLEAR STREETS.

New York, where the traffic problem is worse than anywhere else in the world, is finding cars parked on the streets an unmitigated nuisance. Wherefore there is talk of keeping them off the business streets altogether, except while in motion. Contrary to a popular notion, remarks the New York World, drivers have no inalienable right to use the streets for car storage.

"No more are automobilists entitled to look to the city to care for them by providing space for parking their cars. That is no part of its business. It is properly their own lookout to find room for themselves, whether nominally their cars are used for business or pleasure. And they will have to pay out of their own pockets for what they have had for nothing. For we are fast coming to the point where parking garages will be conducted as ordinary business establishments in many sections of the city. There is no other way. The streets must be kept clear for traffic."

Many cities already are doing what the World suggests for the metropolis, and establishing big private garages in the downtown section for storing cars during business hours. New types of garage are being evolved for that purpose. Every growing city may have to come to it, in time, leaving the streets clear.

MORE SHOES WORN.

"In the cities and smaller towns," writes a business reviewer, "the demand for staple goods is about normal, but not exigent, and luxuries and gew-gaws are neglected. Shoe industry is better, probably because people are riding less and walking more, and is the only line in which a distinct improvement is reported."

Attention is invited particularly to that last sentence. If it is really true that people once more are wearing out shoe leather faster than automobile tires, it is a remarkable reversal of situation. And without any animus against the automobile, it may be said also that the change represents a notable gain in thrift and health, however, temporary it may prove to be.

Let people buy and use motor cars, by all means. They justify themselves to the great majority of buyers, in many ways. But any recurrence of continuance of the good old bipedal method of locomotion, latterly in danger of growing obsolete, is just so much to the good.

SUCCESSFUL NEGROES.

Not long ago the entire white population in a small Georgia town turned out to honor the funeral of an old negro preacher who had endeared himself to the community by a life of unselfish service. That is one way that a black man, like a man of any other hue, can achieve recognition.

Material success is another way, sometimes still more effective. White men may not love a black man because he makes money, but it makes them respect him. This truth appears clearly in the case of the late Uncle Tom Mason, who rose from slavery to become the president of a prosperous bank in Fort Worth, Tex., and when he died the other day, left an estate worth a quarter of a million dollars.

There was a similar example recently in another southern city, when public attention was called to the career of a negro who had long owned and operated a prosperous hotel for white patrons. He had never put himself forward but had always given first-class service and taken a very useful part in the life of the community, and was appreciated accordingly.

This is along the line advocated strongly by Booker T. Washington. He always advised negroes to save money and acquire property. Then, he said, they would respect themselves and others would respect them.

CHEAP POWER IN CANADA.

More than 900 American manufacturers have established branch factories in Canada. According to Consul-General Halstead of Montreal, that is mainly due to the cheap electrical power available there.

Canada has developed more than 3,000,000 of her latent 18,000 hydro-electric horsepower, and is proceeding rapidly to make the rest available, with the ready co-operation of American capital. So inexpensive is that power that it is distributed to homes in Ontario for about one cent per kilowatt-hour, whereas the American home-owner usually has to pay five to 10 cents. The rate for factory power is lower still.

Here is a spur for similar development on this side of the border, which is proceeding less rapidly than it should. With our water-power and coal combined, the whole country could be electrified in a decade or two.

EPINARD.

The owner of Epinard refused $300,000 recently for his famous horse. The price amazes people. Bitter comparisons are made with the value of a man. But there's only one Epinard. At 4 per cent interest, $300,000 would yield an income of $12,000 a year. Any man who makes that is "worth" as much as Epinard.

Multiply your year's income by 25 and you have your actual financial worth on a 4 per cent basis. Are you guarding and caring for your body and mind as much as you would a machine, house or business of the same value?

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Clive Roberts Barton
A LETTER FROM THE FAIRY QUEEN.

There stood fat, dear, old Daddy Gander, his magic dust-pan tucked under his arm.

The Twins found a letter from the Fairy Queen one morning under their porridge dishes on the breakfast table. Or rather Nancy found it under hers, for of course, a letter cannot be under two porridge dishes at once. The letter said:

"Dear Twins:
"Mother Goose and Daddy Gander asked me to send you word that they have invited the Riddle Lady to Mother Goose Land to spend a few days."

"She is going to stay at Mrs. John's house, or rather, at the House-That-Jack-Built, for it's the same thing. Mrs. John, being Jack and Jill's mother, people call it Mrs. John's house."

"Everybody in Mother Goose Land loves the Riddle Lady because they have so much fun when she is there. Every day she asks a riddle and gives a prize to the person who guesses the answer first."

"Mrs. John will serve tea and cakes or maybe cider and doughnuts, and I am sure everybody would be very glad to have you. Put on the magic shoes you will find hidden behind the umbrella stand, and then wish yourselves up on the roof, Daddy Gander will be waiting for you with his magic dust-pan."

"I hope that you all have a very good time."

"Lovingly yours,
"The Fairy Queen."

"Oh, goody!" cried Nancy.

"Hooryay!" shouted Nick.

"What's all the fuss about?" asked Cook coming in from the kitchen.

"When your Mother's away, I don't see how you can be so happy!"

"Oh, but we're going away, too," said Nick.

"What's that?" cried Cook. "And where are you going, I'd like to know."

"Oh, just out to play," said Nick.

"My sakes!" said Cook. "The way you two do gallivant around outdoors is the queerest thing! Gone all day sometimes! And always talking about fairies and brownies and things!"

But she went away still talking to herself about never knowing what children were up to nowadays. No sooner had her apron strings disappeared around the corner of the kitchen door than the Twins slipped down from their places and flew out to the hall.

And there, just as the note had said, were the tiny shoes tucked behind the umbrella stand.

The Twins slipped them on and making a wish found themselves instantly on top of their own roof.

But was it their roof?

No, it couldn't be!—their roof didn't have flowers and trees growing on it and a brook tinkling merrily along between mossy banks.

"Ha, ha, ha!" roared a merry voice. "What makes you look so surprised? You'd think you'd never been to Mother Goose Land before!"

There stood fat, dear, old Daddy Gander, his magic dust-pan tucked under his arm. He laid it down and said a charm, and instantly it spread out like a floor. "Jump on," he said. "They are waiting for us on Pippin Hill."

Eclipse of Sun is Explained by Prof. of Northwestern U.

By Associated Press Licensed Wire
Evanston—The eclipse of the sun on January 24 next is explained by Prof. Philip Fox of Dearborn Observatory, Northwestern University, as promising great interest to astronomers and likely general public interest by reason of the opportunities to observe the phenomenon at many points in the United States.

"The eclipse will see the shadow of the moon first touch the earth at sunrise at a point, longitude 84 degrees and 24 minutes and latitude 48 degrees and 18 minutes, or at a point in northern Minnesota to the northeast of Red Lake," said Prof. Fox.

"From there the shadow will sweep east and south across the great lakes, across New York, northern Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Rhode Island, and then over the Atlantic. It will then go to the north and leave the earth at sunset at longitude 3 degrees five minutes and latitude 61 degrees 28 minutes, a point roughly midway between the Shetland and Faroe Islands."

"The shadow path as it crosses North America will roughly be one hundred miles wide. The following points along the central line will sufficiently define the path: Beaver Bay Minn.; Escanaba, Mich.; Northport, Mich.; Hamilton, Ont.; Buffalo; Birmingham, N. Y.; New Haven, Conn.; Montauk Pt. The path, however, will be wide enough to include such cities as Duluth, Menominee, Mastic and Charlevoix, Mich.; Rochester, N. Y.; and Scranton, Pa. On the Hudson river the shadow will reach from a p.m. and obscure on H.V. night Mar. Athens to upper New York City. The last land touched in North America will be Nantucket.

"The hours of total eclipse, as visible in the United States, are all in the early morning. For Michigan, 8:05 a. m., central time; for New York, about 9:30 a. m., eastern time, and for Faroe Island, 9:15 a. m. The region covered by the path will not be one at that time of the year and day which is apt to give clear skies. Expectations as to weather, however, are not always realized, for it is to be remembered that California, with all its promises of clear skies, turned away empty-handed all groups of astronomers who journeyed there for the eclipse of September, 1923.

"In any case the sun on January 24 will be at low altitude at such an early morning hour and therefore unfavorably placed for observation.

"It is of interest, however, to note that the shadow path will pass over several established observatories: University of Toronto, Cornell, Vassar College, Yale, Wesleyan, Nantucket, Maria Mitchell Association observatory, and complete advantage can be taken for all opportunities offered.

"The eclipse will not be total for Chicago, but early risers looking toward the rising sun will see about 95 percent of it covered by the intervening moon."

Williamson County Court Swamped With Many Cases

Marion—Showed under an ever increasing volume of indictments, the circuit court of Williamson county faces an almost impossible task, if it is to clear its docket. Four terms of court, of two weeks each, are held in the county every year, and two judges are available to handle the docket. At the September term these judges faced a docket of approximately 1,000 cases, 252 of which were criminal cases.

In addition to handling the circuit court of Williamson county, Judges Hartwell and Somers, of this, the First judicial district, include Jackson, Union, Alexander, Pulaski, Massac, Johnson, Pope and Saline counties in their circuit. This means that they must hold court in eight other counties besides Williamson.

Of the 981 cases which were on the September docket of the court, 320 were chancery cases, 196 common law cases and 193 were appeals. Glenn Young leads the list in criminal indictments, being named as defendant in 74 cases. Indictments against him include charges of robbery, larceny, assault with intent to murder, assault with a deadly weapon, kidnapping, false imprisonment, conspiracy, falsely assuming an office, riot, malicious mischief and parading with arms.

Of the 252 criminal cases 53 charge assault to commit murder, 41 charge larceny, 19 confidence game and 17 robbery. Eight murder cases are on the docket.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Don'ts for Colds

In this season when the first colds of the year are likely to make their appearance, it is a pretty good idea to give the youngsters a list of "don'ts" and be sure they heed them. The Manas of Anytown were a bit careless, like most people, but it's a good plan to follow these rules with either little Mary or Billy if they have colds: Don't let them kiss anyone. Teach them to cover their mouth and nose when they sneeze.

Don't let them sleep with any of the other children. Make a gargle from one fourth teaspoonful of salt and the same amount of soda mixed in hot water. Give them a hot footbath before they go to bed and a hot lemonade after they get in. And, of course, a good cathartic. Don't let them eat meals or heavy foods and, if confined to bed, a little hot broth or milk several times a day.

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO

I had said nothing, Leslie, while the girl was telling her story and here she looked up quickly and asked if she were boring me.

"No, no, go on! I am most interested," I exclaimed.

"And so the time went on, Mrs. Burke," she continued, "until one day I was out doing some shopping alone when I met Mr. Stores on the Rue de la Paix. He said he would ride home with me to town but when we got into the trolley car he told the chauffeur to drive through the Bois.

"Then without any preamble he told me he loved me and asked me to help him kidnap the child and go away with him. He had a mad plan to go to the west coast of Africa, where he said no one would look for us.

"Of course I told him it was impossible, which turned him into a wild man. For a while I fought silently but at last I had to ask the chauffeur to let me out of the car.

"The man, although shut off from us by glass, must have known something was wrong, for he promptly stopped the car, although Mr. Stores shouted for him to drive on.

"I managed to get myself away from my employer's clinging hands and almost before the motor had stopped I was on the ground.

"I slammed the door, for Mr. Stores was trying to get out after me, telling the chauffeur to drive his hasty home as I thought he had suddenly gone mad.

DID HOLLYWOOD MYSTERY MAN FORECAST OWN MURDER? HIS MUSIC YIELDS CLUE WOMEN, WEALTH, CZAR'S GEMS INVOLVED IN L. A. SLAYING

Los Angeles—The lips speak only what the mind feels, but music shows the soul.

An old motto but one which has sent the police of this city scurrying back to a music trail to solve the latest and one of its most sensational murders.

Harry I. Katz, wealthy clubman, diamond and real estate broker, a bon vivant, somewhat of an eccentric, cannot speak now. He is dead, murdered. His violins are silent—22 of them, but it is through them that justice may be done his slayer.

Music Expressed Fears?

"Sometimes so plaintive, sometimes jolly, and sometimes as though the fear he felt was in them," declares his neighbors, telling of his playing.

Fear in music. Why ask the police. What visitor caused the music to change from sentiment and joy to fright? Answer that question, they say, and the mystery will be solved.

So the police are following his music trail—and other trails, too. There were diamonds, there were women, there were business intrigues that are said to include the intrigues of international gem smuggling.

Czar's Jewels Mentioned

Was he killed in a dispute over the famous Russian crown jewels? Rumor tells of how Katz had gained possession of these gems which disappeared with the assassination of the czar and his family.

Katz had described himself as an orchestra leader of the middle west. But in Los Angeles he enjoyed sensational profits in real estate, and it is believed in booze and gems.

But a decided possibility, police believe, is that the shot that took his life in his luxurious home here came from the gun of an underworld character seeking revenge.

Two Women Involved

And two women are involved. One, name unknown, is being sought. The other, Mrs. Regita Marstini, dancer and actress, was engaged to Katz.

"I had not seen him for a week," she told police. Letters from her to Katz are in the possession of the police. In Hollywood she is known as "The Countess."

Katz was known to be wealthy. He carried large sums of money with him. His luxurious yacht, his bachelor surroundings, his automobiles all advertised his wealth. And it is said ship sailing for America. When I arrived I did not know what to do. I had very little money and I knew absolutely no one in this country.

"Harry had never told me anything about his friends. I had never known until he died that he had been married to you. I had no references and I knew that no one would take an utter stranger into his home without one.

"Then I thought of the kindest, tenderest and most loyal woman in all the world and I have brought my letter—the letter which was put into my hands by my dying brother—to you."

Leslie, the girl is really quite wonderful and I have been thinking that perhaps you might want her as a nursery governess for little Jack, especially as very soon more or less of your time will have to be given to your new baby.

There is much more to tell you and some day I want you to hear poor Harry's pitiful last letter, but just now I wish you would think this over and answer as soon as possible, for although Zoe and I have become great friends, she is not very happy being what she calls, dependent on me.

Sincerely,
RUTH.

TOMORROW—Letter from Leslie Prescott to Ruth Burke.

A motorist was giving a lift to an elderly woman.

After speeding along for some time he turned to her and asked: "Where did you say you were going?"

"As a matter of fact I was going the other way, but I did not want to hurt your feelings," came the reply.—Pearson's Weekly, London.

"Bobby," said the teacher sternly, "do you know that you have broken the Eighth Commandment by stealing James' apple?"

"Well," explained Bobby, "I thought I might just as well break the Eighth and have the apple as to break the Tenth and only covet it."—Pearson's Weekly, London.

May Be Required to Show Proof They

DeKalb, Ill.—High school athletes in contests away from home will be required to offer proof that they have behaved as gentlemen, at least while hotel guests, if a proposal of the board of control of the Illinois High School Athletic association, is adopted at the annual association convention in Urbana, November 21.

This recommendation, of the board reads as follows:

"The faculty representation accompanying any team on a trip to engage in an interscholastic contest shall, upon his return from the trip, file with the principal of his school a certificate signed by the management of the hotel where the team was entertained indicating that the conduct of the members of the team was or was not satisfactory."

Several other amendments will be passed upon at the convention. Geneseo High school has submitted two amendments, one seeking to regulate eligibility in schools where a Junior high school exists, and the other forbidding any organized practice before the opening of the school term in the fall.

Moline and Rock Island have offered an amendment requiring that failure of any school to live up to the rule pertaining to the mailing of a list of eligible players five days before the contest shall be reported to the board of control and the offending school called to account.

An addition to article IV, suggesting that the board of control prepare annually a list of officials for basketball, football and track and send them to each school has been submitted by Marseilles.

The results compiled from a questionnaire on interscholastic athletics recently sent to 714 high schools in the state will be considered. Five hundred twenty-six class 1 schools, enrolling under 150 pupils; 141 class 2 schools, with 151 to 500 enrollment; 32 class 3 schools, enrolling 501 to 1000, and 15 class 4 schools, with over 1000 enrollment, received the questionnaire, and from the answers received it appeared that 7275 basketball and 1225 football contests between high schools in Illinois were played last season.

Only a few more than one-fifth of the class 1 schools have football teams, the report indicates, but on the other hand, all but 15 of this class have basketball teams, some of them more than one. In class 2, all schools have basketball and all but 7 have football teams, while in classes 3 and 4 all schools have both basketball and football teams, many of them more than one team of each.

The average number of basketball games played by each school in class 1 is known to be 15; class 2, 23; class 3, 24; and class 4, 25. In football contests, class one schools averaged 6; class 2, 8; class 3, 8; and class 4, 10; with an average of 8 for all schools together.

BIG TEN TITLE WITHIN REACH OF FOUR TEAMS

Chicago, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa Are in the Running.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Nov. 17.—The Western Conference football championship race, now in the home stretch, is still within the grasp of each of the four eleven leading in the season totals today.

Chicago has the best chance, with an undisputed championship certain, in case of a victory or a tie over Wisconsin next Saturday, but Michigan, Illinois and Iowa could finish on top if the Badgers should defeat Coach Stagg's squad.

Illinois, despite the Minnesota upset Saturday, still has a chance to go in to a tie for first place, while either Michigan or Iowa could have a clear claim on the championship depending on the outcome of Saturday's games.

Since many of the Big Ten eleven play different numbers of conference games, the season standing generally are based on the games lost and tied, and on these tie games, of which there have been four in the conference this season, may depend the conference title for 1924.

A defeat for either Michigan, Illinois or Iowa puts them entirely outside the championship race.

The conference championship possibilities for next Saturday based on a defeat for Chicago by Wisconsin, line up as follows, with the number of games won, disregarded:

NO DROP KICKS GAVE CLINTON A VICTORY SUNDAY

Clinton Forced to Use a Number of Subs Who Played Well.

Clinton's toe turned the trick against the Dixon Legion Sunday afternoon at Brown's Field when Clinton, with a large crowd of rooters, made their annual invasion here and won home with a victory of 6 to 0. No drop kicks in the final quarter were the day for Clinton. Almost 100 fans were present to watch the final tilt between the Legion teams Dixon and Clinton and with ideal ball weather, they were shown the game that has been played here a year.

That Dixon was not beaten by a decisive count speaks well for the wonderful work of subs who were called in at the last minute to hold responsible positions. Wise was able to carry on his work at left half because of an injury to his right leg sustained the week before. Captain Gus Wimpelberg was called in Saturday by the critical illness of his wife and was unable to be present. Dee's sudden and mysterious appearance from the squad left the vacancies which were important.

Vaughan was sent to the right half and Daw to the left. Both worked hard and gave good accounts of themselves throughout the contest. Hitchcock was again used at center and performed nicely in that position.

Line Battering Failed

Clinton used the Osborne shift and tried to try to batter a hole in Clinton's line, but soon found that this was a ground-losing proposition. Dixon was having better success at ground gaining through the Clinton line but both sides resorted to punting to keep the ball out of dangerous territory. Belding was doing the booting for the visitors and Lazier was in perfect form for Dixon. The first half was played without either team threatening to score and at the start of the second half, the visitors opened up their aerial attacks. Several attempts to pass were broken up. In the final quarter, Burlingame snapped the ball over to Belding which netted a 15 yard gain and put the ball on the 25 yard line in front of the posts. Belding was sent back and booted the ball over the top of the posts. Belding's kick of the lot, the ball sailing between the posts.

Dixon tried to work the ball down the field with but four minutes of playing time left and opened up their attack. Hess to Cone made ten yards and it was Dixon's ball on their own 10 yard line. Williams grabbed the ball and attempted pass out of the air and Clinton again started working the ball down slowly in the center of the field. The 25 yard line when Belding again sent it over the bar for another three points as the final whistles sounded. It was 6 to 0 in favor of Clinton.

GRANGE, STAR OF ILLINOIS, IS OUT FOR FINAL GAMES

Injuries He Received Saturday Will Keep Him on Bench.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Harold "Red" Grange, star half back of the Illinois eleven and the western conference's most promising jewel, suffered his keenest defeat of the season Saturday in the final tilt with Minnesota.

The upset of Grange's tactics, which have been the source of victory for Illinois almost entirely this year, came as a complete surprise. Minnesota had prepared a defense that caught the star like a steam roller, blocking him at his best plays. And Minnesota accomplished what other teams have striven for since Grange opened up with his powerful playing.

Illinois saw its hopes leave the field with a sagging shoulder, bent by the unexpected rough-housing Minnesota's eleven accorded him. Each time Grange made for a dash with the ball the Gophers landed on him heavily, sometimes as many as four opponents piling upon his body after a tackle.

Although he succeeded in stopping the star from making the scores he has made in nearly all his games the Minnesota team suffered penalties for its roughness. But side line spectators said there was no "dirt" particularly identified with the Gophers' plays at the star.

Centered Drive on "Red"

Minnesota seemed to have centered its entire force on Grange, for when Coach Zuppke altered his backfield play to Britton in an endeavor to offset the smashers at Grange, the Gophers apparently took a rest, leaving Britton to land softer than his comrades.

Grange even failed of his forward passing. His attempts to throw to Britton failed again and again. Minnesota had the judgment to cover Britton as well as Grange. But the star did effect a defense in Saturday's battle that has been unheard of him in other games. Twice he managed tackles that saved his team a much bigger score against it.

It is said that Illinois' game with Chicago last week weakened the Illinois in an off day. But experts are agreed that hardly any Illinois eleven, less the Chicago tilt, could have withstood the smashing Minnesota grid warriors.

Grange is out of the running the remainder of the season. As some say, the bigger they are the harder they fall, so dropped Grange into the list of casualties. Illinois probably will look to Britton now to carry out what Grange did in the final tilt of the season next Saturday.

This is a new picture of Harold Grange, the idol of Illinois. Harold will play his last football of the year against Ohio in the memorial stadium on Saturday, November 22. Ohio last year rather plumed itself that it had stopped the Illinois wildcat but a close inspection of the claim seemed to demonstrate its fallacy since Red ran 35 yards for a touchdown on the Buckeye, which is no mean feat. At that the superhuman is expected from him. The Buckeyes, with Cunningham, passer and the fleet Klee who broke up the Illinois-Ohio game two years ago, expect to surprise the Illinois. It looks as if everybody in Illinois and adjoining states is figuring on a trip to the Illinois stadium to see the famous Red in his final game this year. Grange provides so many thrills that one wonders what football will seem like after he has passed off the college scene.

LINE COACH OF GOPHERS GIVEN CREDIT FOR WIN

Leonard Frank Devised Plays Which Gave Illini Beating.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—To Leonard Frank, line coach at the University of Minnesota and former star athlete at the Gopher school, goes much of the credit to devising the plays that enabled Minnesota to stop, 20-7, Illinois and the famous "Red" Grange here Saturday, it was learned today.

Frank was assigned the task of planning the attack on the Illini, by Bill Spaulding, head football coach at Minnesota. As soon as Spaulding and Frank had received a scout's report on the Chicago-Illinois 21-21 tie, they went into conference in which the plan of defense was decided upon.

It was agreed that defensive play was half the game and it was determined to concentrate upon it even after they had heard that Chicago's success had come only through a powerful counter-attack.

The marvelous thing about the great defensive play of Minnesota was that it stopped Grange without the use of unnatural means or formation. Each man played his position just as he would have played against any other team but Frank had each drilled to execute his allotted task so perfectly that he had no need of help.

More Open Defense

If there was any difference between the defensive style of Minnesota Saturday and in earlier games, it was that a more open defense was played against Illinois and that men were made freer to drop back from the line to protect the territory into which passes were likely to fall. Further laurels were added to the record of Clarence Schutte, fleet and powerful driving left half of the Gophers, when it became known today that he had played through Saturday's game with his injured side tightly taped and that he was in agony from bruised and battered ribs.

He had been taped into a stooped position and the binding was so strong and heavy that he could not stand upright. He could run in only one position and in almost a straight line, but his power was so great he could not be checked with any marked success.

He went over for the Gophers' three touchdowns.

Incidentally it was Schutte's last Big Ten appearance. Although it was his first season as a Minnesota regular he will be ineligible for football next year because of the fact that he played for two years on the varsity squad at the University of South Dakota, before coming here.

Stars of the "Golden Tornado"

Capt. George Gardner, left, and Douglas Wycoff, fullback, are two stars of Georgia Tech's eleven, which numbers a victory over Penn State among its achievements to date. The Golden Tornado was checked by the University of Alabama, however.

Standing of Big Ten College Teams

Chicago, Nov. 17.—(By the Associated Press)—Western conference standings on the basis of games won and lost are almost identical with the team standings in relation to total points scored and opponents points. The first three teams in the conference race stand in that order on comparative points for conference games only and the first three are also the only teams with point majorities in their favor. Minnesota and Northwestern each have been held scoreless twice.

The total of points scored in conference games with the teams listed as they stand in the conference ratings follows:

Team	Games	Points	Opponents
Chicago	5	69	39
Michigan	5	91	45
Illinois	4	103	55
Iowa	4	34	43
Purdue	3	13	29
Indiana	3	19	47
Minnesota	4	27	40
Ohio	5	23	31
Northwestern	3	14	40

A Romance of the Spanish Main CAPTAIN BLOOD By RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.
"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitaphone picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

"Perhaps it will be best," M. de Rivarol took up a paper. "Before going further, I have to observe that M. de Cussy has exceeded his instructions in admitting you to one-fifth of the prizes taken."

"That is a matter between yourself and M. de Cussy, my general."

"Oh, no. It is a matter between myself and you."

"Your pardon, my general. The articles are signed. So far as we are concerned, the matter is closed."

"But, mon Dieu! it is your concern, I suppose, that we cannot award you more than one tenth share."

"You are quite certain of that, M. le Baron; that you cannot?"

"I am quite certain that I will not."

"In that case," said Blood, "it but remains for me to present my little account for our disbursement, and to fix the sum at which we should be compensated for our loss of time and derangement in coming hither. That settled, we can part friends, M. le Baron. No harm has been done."

"What the devil do you mean?"

"Is it possible that I am obscure? My French, perhaps, is not of the purest, but—"

"Oh, your French is fluent enough; too fluent at moments, if I may permit myself the observation. Now, look you here, M. le Villibustier, you have accepted serv-

"Sir, you—you are insolent! But of insolence that is intolerable!"

"M. le Baron, you waste words. Justice is justice in the New World as in the Old. That justice I invite you, with submission, to administer."

"With submission?" snorted the baron in furious scorn.

"At the same time I will remind M. le Baron that my buccaneers number 800; your troops 500; and M. de Cussy will inform you of the interesting fact that any one buccaneer is equal in action to at least three soldiers of the line."

"You will do me the favor to wait in the ante-room, M. le Capitaine. I desire a word with M. de Cussy."

When the door had closed, the baron loosed his fury upon the head of M. de Cussy.

"So, these are the men you have enlisted in the King's service, the men who are to serve under me! What explanations do you offer me, M. de Cussy? I warn you that I am not pleased with you. I am, in fact, as you may perceive, exceedingly angry."

The Governor seemed to shed his chubbiness. He drew himself stiffly erect.

"M. le Baron, it was folly to have arrested the buccaneer captain. It would be madness to persist. We have not the forces to meet force."

M. de Rivarol condescended to be mollified. It was necessary that he should save his face.

"Very well," he said. "Be so good as to recall this Captain Blood."

The Captain came in, assured and very dignified. M. de Rivarol found him detestable, but dissembled it.

"M. le Capitaine, I have taken counsel with M. le Gouverneur. From what he tells me, it is possible that a mistake has been committed. Your captain shall be released."

Captain Blood bowed.

"And now, sir, you have had the night for reflection in this matter of the articles. Am I to understand that you confirm or that you repudiate them?"

"I have considered that, too," he announced. "And whilst my opinion remains unaltered, I must confess that since M. de Cussy has pledged us, it is for us to fulfill the pledges. The articles are confirmed, sir."

Blood and his officers were summoned a week later to a council which sat to determine their operations against Spain. M. de Rivarol laid before them a project for a raid upon the wealthy Spanish town of Cartagena, which was rich in gold loot. Captain Blood professed astonishment. Sourly invited by M. de Rivarol to state his grounds for it, he did so with the utmost frankness.

"You mean, sir, that we are to sail across the Caribbean on an adventurous expedition, neglecting that which lies here at our very door. In our absence, a Spanish invasion of French Hispaniola is possible. If we begin by reducing the Spaniards here, that possibility will be removed. We shall have added to the Crown of France the most coveted possession in the West Indies."

Captain Blood laughed outright. He had suddenly read the Baron's mind. M. de Rivarol, intrigued by his mirth, scowled upon him disapprovingly.

"Why do you laugh, monsieur?"

"Because I discover here an irony that is supremely droll. You, M. le Baron, General of the King's Armies by Land and Sea in America, propose an enterprise of a purely buccaneering character; whilst I, the buccaneer, am urging one that is more concerned with upholding the honor of France. You perceive how droll it is."

"M. le Villibustier," cried Rivarol in a thick voice, "it seems that I must again remind you that I am your superior officer."

"My superior officer! You! Why, you are just a common pirate! M. le Baron, I have the honor to wish you good-day."

He stalked out, and his three captains, although they thought him mad—rolled after him in loyal silence.

Nevertheless, it was to Cartagena that they sailed in the middle of March. Volunteers and negroes had brought up the forces directly under M. de Rivarol to twelve hundred men. With these he thought he could keep the buccaneer contingent in order and submissive.

They made up an imposing fleet, led by M. de Rivarol's flagship, the Victorieuse, a mighty vessel of eighty guns. Each of the four other French ships was at least as powerful as Blood's Arabella, which was of forty guns. Followed the lesser buccaneer vessels, the Elizabeth, Lachesis, and Atropos, and a dozen frigates laden with stores, besides canoes and small craft in tow.

"Your people have arrested the wrong man, M. de Rivarol," Captain Blood began. "Instead of the French officer, who used the grossest provocation, they have arrested Captain Wolverstone. It is a matter which I beg you to reverse without delay."

There entered now into his presence a spruce and modish gentleman, dressed with care and somber richness in black and silver, his swarthy, clear-cut face scrupulously shaven, his long black hair in ringlets that fell to a collar of fine point. In his right hand the gentleman carried a broad black hat with a scarlet ostrich plume, in his left hand an ebony cane. His stockings were of silk, a bunch of ribbons masked his garters and the black rosettes on his shoes were finely edged with gold.

WOMAN, KNOWN IN DIXON, KILLED IN FALL OF 1000 FEET

Ethel Dare Met Horrible
End in Michigan on
Sat. Afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Johnson, known throughout the country as Ethel Dare, parachute jumper and airplane stunt artist, who had appeared in Dixon several times and who was known by many people of this city, was instantly killed at Cassopolis, Mich., Saturday, when a new harness she was trying out in a parachute jump failed, and she fell 1000 feet.

Mrs. Johnson went up in a plane piloted by Capt. H. F. Cole, a veteran of the Canadian air force. With the plane travelling eighty-five miles an hour, she climbed out on the upper wing and leaped into space. Her parachute opened.

Falls, Faster and Faster.
A second later, the crowd of spectators gasped. They saw the parachute partly collapse and the figure in white falling faster and faster away from the apparatus.

"She used to wear what we call a safety belt harness," said Jack Cope of Chicago, a flyer who was talking part in the meet. "Recently she has been experimenting with what is called an exhibition harness. This was the first time she ever used it in public."

The fatal accident occurred in the first stunt on a program and flying for the day was concluded.

Had Made 200 Leaps.
Mrs. Johnson had narrow escape from death on Aug. 19, 1922 when she gave an exhibition in connection with the Pageant of Progress at the municipal pier in Chicago. She fell 300 feet before her parachute opened and the high wind carried her a mile out in the lake. She was rescued from drowning by the life saving boat just as she was being borne down by the weight of the apparatus. She has made more than 200 leaps in her stunting career which began in Kalamazoo, Mich., in 1914. She was granted a pilot's license a few months ago.

CAPITAL ROMANCE Society Girl to Become Bride of Scion of "First Family"

The engagement of Frederica McKenney, one of Washington's most prominent society maidens, to Elaine Mallan, member of one of the capital's oldest families, has just been announced. Miss McKenney, daughter of Frederic Duncan McKenney, made her debut two years ago.

New York—From the rear windows of 117 West Forty-ninth street one can look out upon the twin spires of St. Patrick's Cathedral. They stand there like bright sentinels of God on the fringe of the devil's stamping ground.

On a Sunday morning one can lie in bed at 117 West Forty-ninth street and hear the chimes. There is at times something exalting, soul-lifting in the pealing of those bells, at times something disquieting, melancholy. "Te Deum!" "Hosannah!"

And on a Saturday night one may look out upon the fiery lights of Broadway that blot out the heavens like a blast from Hades. In that scene there is something insidiously depressing, something symbolic of lost souls shuffling about aimlessly restlessly under the incandescent canopy above.

Madeline Heath, 20, has lived at 117 West Forty-ninth Street for five months. She came from Toronto, aspiring to be a singer. She worked in the cloak room of a restaurant on upper Broadway and used part of her meager wage for singing lessons. Last Sunday she heard the ringing of the chimes. She looked out upon the crosses that reach toward Heaven, symbols of man's spiritual yearning. That day she quit her job in the restaurant.

Today they took her to Bellevue Hospital and saved her life with an antidote for iodine poisoning.

On her dresser was a note, "Tired of the humdrum life of false alarm Broadway."

There are thousands of young girls and young men who come to New York, as Madeline came, hope beating high, sure of the strength that is within them.

They envisage themselves in fine clothes, magnificent homes and clever society. They count their nickles for lunch. They do their own mending and pressing. They brew tea over a gas jet. They live from hand-to-mouth.

Some plod along, never getting out of the rut, becoming just another infinitesimal cog in this gigantic machine, grinding on to the end. Some few climb to greater heights than they would have reached in their home towns. And some end it all in the gesture of despair that almost concluded Madeline's troubles.

This town is full of rooming house tragedies, tragedies of thwarted ambitions, of heart-eating loneliness.

You cannot quite explain this loneliness of being isolated in a city of six million souls. You cannot feel it unless you have lived as Madeline lived in West Forty-ninth street, just off "False Alarm Broadway."

—JAMES W. DEAN.

New York—A new game is being played in New York. A fellow who styles himself "Reverend" walks into a Sunday School, asks the superintendent for permission to address the attendants, talks two or three minutes, takes up a collection and, before anyone knows what it's all about, walks out.

Gotham is in the throes of its annual hiccup epidemic. Roosevelt Hospital reports that hundreds of hiccupers have been treated there within the past few weeks.

There is a certain element of humor in a hiccup, due perhaps to its association with the stage comies who project the hiccup as the chief characteristic of a drunk. On the other hand, an epidemic of hiccupers may be the forerunner of a flu epidemic.

One man in a Jamaica hospital has been hiccuping steadily for eight days and physicians have been unable to find any means of relieving him.

Joseph A. Caporale, of 313 Water street, was stake-holder for $150 in election bets. He stuffed the bills in his shoe. When the shoe didn't fit so well, he took it to Paul DeMatteo, a cobbler. Paul, like most cobblers, is honest. He returned the $150 to Caporale and didn't charge for alterations.

Saw Ed Wynn, "the perfect fool."

walking down Broadway, looking for all the world like an undertaker living in a deathless city.

Let's see—were we with the Germans, or against them, in the World War? That was a long while ago, anyway.

A four-piece German brass band is playing in lower Manhattan. I saw it the other day in Frankfort street, down in the leather and hide district. It consisted of a bass horn, trombone, cornet and clarinet.

It was playing in front of an erstwhile saloon. And it was playing "Die Wacht am Rhuine."

The only things missing were pretzels and beer.

University Course is Disproving Jazz Reign

Urbana, Ill.—That the young people of the country are more interested in "jazz" than they are in the best of music is staunchly denied by the manager of the Star Course, at the University of Illinois, which has been unable to find a building large enough to accommodate the crowds which want to attend the musical programs given at the University this year.

The Star Course at the University of Illinois has outgrown the Auditorium since it inaugurated the policy of bringing the very best talent at popular prices. The appreciation of the best by the students is shown by the fact that every one of the 2109 season tickets was sold four hours after they were put on sale. Ralph Monk, of Urbana, manager, estimated that 4000 season tickets could have been sold. It is probable that a larger place will be provided for next season, and the students have asked for the use of the main room of the new men's gymnasium, which is now under construction.

The Star Lecture Course became firmly organized in 1891 by the Philomathian and Adelphe literary societies. It had only mediocre success until last year when a new policy of getting the very best talent was put into effect and the wisdom of the change was felt immediately when 1950 season tickets were sold last year and 2109 this year.

The first number on the program this year is Sergei Rachmaninoff, celebrated Russian pianist, who is the highest paid artist on the course this year. The other numbers will be the Flonzaley Quartet, Mme. Louise Homer, contralto, Tito Schipa, tenor and Efrem Zimbalist, violinist.

The opportunity to hear these artists of the highest class at prices ranging from three to four dollars for the season has been eagerly seized upon by the students of the University, showing a real appreciation of music on the campus.

"I must have been born unlucky."

"What makes you say that?"

"Well, I went to a Rugby football match once. There were thirty players on the field, a couple of thousand people on the benches, a thousand in the grand stand, and the ball hit me."

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Good Form in Gloves

Blessed be the pace-makers, for even if they shall not, Biblically speaking, inherit the earth, they shall, yes, verily, make it a speedier and sprightlier place to live in. The pace-maker does not wait for cold weather and red knuckles before he puts on his gloves. He wears them as a matter of style; as a matter of habit and as a matter of course throughout Autumn, Winter and Spring. The pace-maker knows that the well-gloved hands is just as important to correct dress as the well-hatted head or the well-shod feet. The pace-maker distinguishes between different gloves and leathers for different purposes and occasions.

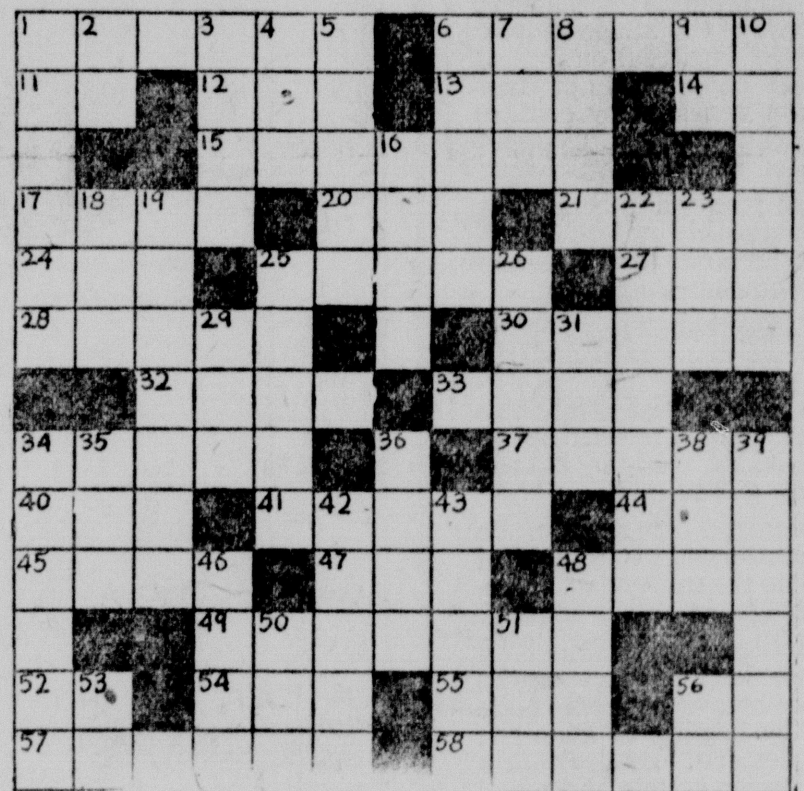

The pace-maker wears his gloves. He does not carry them in his hand like ten stalks of celery, nor crush them into a ball, as though he were preparing to pitch them over the fence. The pace-maker does not keep on wearing gloves as long as they keep on. He discards them the moment they look discolored and shabby. The pace-maker sees that his walking gloves are sufficiently full-cut and roomy to be slipped on and off easily. He knows that if gloves are an effort to get into or out of, he won't try. In short, the pace-maker pays just as punctilious heed to his gloves as to any other accessory of wear.

You cannot be well-dressed unless you are well-gloved. A woman is proverbially and pardonably proud of her hand, but the male paw looks best in a leather envelope. The most favored glove for street and business is the tan capecskin with spear-point backs. However, the yellowish chamois glove, plain or embroidered, as sketched here, is in a way to regain much of its oldtime vogue. Besides the standard buttoned glove, there is the pull-on or "sack" type, which has no buttons, but is allowed to crease over the wrist.

Buckskin, elkskin, reindeer and pigskin (or pigskin finish) gloves are also correct for every-day use. Mocha and suede leathers are reserved for more formal occasions, such as to accompany the cut-away coat or the Tuxedo jacket. White or pearl-tinted glazed kidskin is worn with the swallowtail coat. With both day and evening dress it is proper to carry a stick, but, alas!, most men cannot screw their courage up to the sticking point.

What to Look for in Real Radio Set

What kind of a radio set to build or buy should not be the puzzling problem which it often is.

Even though there are many kinds of circuits, numerous parts well known by their brand names, and scores of types of sets, any person, by using common sense and applying a little gray matter can easily select what is best adapted to his or her particular needs, and will give the best satisfaction and service.

The prospective buyer or builder of a set should first ask himself, "What do I look for in my radio set?"

First of all, most people nowadays look for a set which will operate on a loop with a loud speaker. A loop minimizes static and is convenient and slightly. Loop reception has increased in popularity by leaps and bounds, and the day of the outside antenna is about gone.

Secondly, a most desirable quality in any set is simplicity of operation. Such highly efficient circuit as the well known 4 tube Acme Reflex operate with only one control, notwithstanding the fact that six stages of amplification are used.

Another essential of a good loop set—and an absolutely indispensable one—is a well made and well designed condenser in which the losses are reduced to a minimum. A high loss condenser has no more place in an efficient set than a leaky hose has in a fire department.

The transformer is the heart of any set. Only with good transformers can amplification with distortion be secured. A set which can use either storage battery or dry battery tubes has much to commend it.

Of course, every person who builds his own set, or buys one, wishes to receive programs from distant stations, but even DX fans are coming to realize that distance reception after all is not the most important thing. Quality of reception, i. e., the accurate and clear reproduction of the voice or the musical instrument counts above everything else.

After all, radio is not a complex thing it is simple if a person will stick to the essentials and avoid the fads and frites. No one need have an expensive set to get good results. Nearly 100,000 people in the United States have built sets of the Acme Reflex type during the past two years, and not only get excellent results, but enjoy building a circuit which suits them and the thrill of getting results on a product of their own ingenuity.

Radio has made the American people proud of their ability to use their hands as well as their heads.

Illinois High Schools to Debate on Waterway

Normal, Ill.—Debaters of Illinois high schools will grapple with the problem of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterway, this season.

Announcing the program of the Illinois State High School Debating League, Fred S. Sorrenson of Illinois State Normal university, the league manager, has addressed 800 high school principals and 102 county school superintendents. Last year, his announcement said, 56 schools entered the league.

The subject this year, he writes, was selected because of its excellent possibilities for high school pupils. It is,—Resolved, That the United States and Canada should immediately set about constructing the St. Lawrence Deep Waterway in accordance with the recommendation of the International Joint Commission.

League schools will be grouped into districts, and will participate in four debates. The school gaining the most decisions will be district champion, and then enter the state championship contest at Normal, May 9. In that contest each team will enter two dual or triangular meets, from which the state champion team will emerge.

Minier high school won the championship last year, with Waukegan second and Paxton third. District winners other than these three were: Carthage, Forrest and Murrayville.

Other schools competing last year were Aledo, Alexis, Ashland, Bland, Illinois, Cuba, Danville, Dwight, Elkhurst, Elmhurst, Freeport, Galena, Geneseo, Knoxville, Mendota, Minonk, Normal, Peoria Manual, East Peoria, Pleasant Plains, Robinson, Rockford, Roodhouse, Sparland, Spring Valley, Stillman Valley, Tuscola, Urbana, Wellington and Wenona.

Tow Rope Essential in Motorists' Equipment

"Perhaps not one motorist in one hundred carries a tow rope" says a bulletin issued by the Mechanical first aid department of the Chicago Motor Club, "yet carrying this useful article would frequently save a man a lot of time, trouble and money. If you have a rope handy most any motorist will 'hook on' and give you a lift."

"In the old days before cars had reached the mechanical perfection of today, carrying tow ropes was more popular. This practice has almost ceased, and yet the Chicago Motor Club answered some 22,471 calls for help last year—so cars do stall even today, and tow ropes would help the stranded motorist."

When sugar was first introduced into Europe, its only purpose was to make the taste of medicines more pleasant.

New High Gasoline Consumption Record

THE Bureau of Mines (Washington, D. C.) places the domestic consumption of gasoline for August, 1924, at 819,467,892 gallons, an increase over July consumption of 22,001,302 gallons and the highest monthly consumption of gasoline ever reached in the United States.

Notwithstanding this unusual demand, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been able to keep the motorist of the Middle West constantly supplied with gasoline. This is the direct result of strict economy in production and the uninterrupted operation of a modern system of distribution.

The new high gasoline consumption record of August tells of hundreds of small business organizations made efficient by means of the automobile and an abundance of standard quality gasoline. It tells of thousands of families who have enjoyed healthful outings at minimum cost. It tells of hundreds of thousands of city children benefited by country air, because motor transportation carried them into open spaces at a trifling charge.

Giving people what they want, at a price they easily can afford to pay, is in itself a valuable service. This service is rendered to society by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Few of the hundreds of thousands of people who profit daily by the abundance and the wide distribution of gasoline, consider the intricate industrial problems solved before this service could be rendered. They are apt to think of gasoline as yielded freely by nature; a generous, unceasing gift to man.

On the contrary, no matter how freely crude oil is produced by nature, without the aid of science it does not yield the tremendous quantities of gasoline needed to supply the demand.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) by originating processes which vastly increase the percentage of gasoline recovered from crude oil, serves mankind by helping to keep the supply equal to the demand. By devising a comprehensive distribution system and maintaining it in the face of every obstacle, this Company is able to make gasoline available to millions who could not afford to have the fuel shipped to them individually. Gasoline is as accessible to the farmers of the Middle West as it is to the city dweller.
